PROGRESSIVE CANDIDATE FOR CITY COMMISSIONER

To the Voters of Knoxville:—

As the date of the municipal primary approaches it is apparent that it will be an impossibility for me to see every voter in person, as much as I would like to do so, and for that reason I am again appealing to you through the columns of the newspaper.

I have been a lifelong resident of Knoxville and through many years of business here I have become acquainted with the needs of the city and the things that must be done to promote its interests. If nominated and elected I promise to faithfully fulfill all the duties of the office of City Commissioner on a fair, impartial and business-like basis.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE

Statements from some of the candidates seem calculated to convey the impression that the women of Tennessee could never have gained the right to vote except for the efforts of these gentlemen. I frankly confess that I have never taken an active part in a campaign for woman suffrage, but I have always openly advocated this privilege for women and can see no reason why they should not have a voice in selecting the officials to govern the schools and business affairs of the city in which they live. For my own satisfaction I am glad I favored woman suffrage, but I do not consider that this creates any obligation on the part of the new voters. I am making this race on merit alone and I will thoroughly appreciate the votes of the women of Knoxville who support me on that ground.

BUSINESS AND LABOR

I have always maintained that a business man instead of a politician can best serve the City in the management of its business affairs. The fact that I have built and am conducting the largest and most successful business of its kind in this part of the country is the recommendation I offer in asking you to entrust the joint management of the City's business to me. Contented, well paid employes have been largely responsible for the success of my business, which demonstrates my principle of treating Labor in a fair and square manner and paying reasonable wages for services rendered.

If I have one interest above another it is that of the schools. We should not be satisfied with anything less than the best for our children, and in order to do this we must be willing to go as far as our funds will permit toward making salary increases necessary to acquire the services of teachers who are thoroughly capable.

If nominated and elected I pledge myself to stand for a progressive administration of city affairs and will do all within my power to make Knoxville a bigger and better city.

I believe in a square deal to all, regardless of color or politics, and I appeal to all the voters of Knoxville, men and women, for their support Saturday, September 6th.
